Last year was a bad one for the fire insurance companies. The losses by fire in this country and Canada amounted to $163,362,250, against $136,773,200 for 1889 and $119,650,500 for 1898. The majority of these fires were doubtless the result of carelessness.

IN SPECIAL SESSION.

Board of Aldermen Met Last Night at 8 O'clock in the City Hall.

THE STREET IMPROVEMENT.

Extended Discussion of an Apparent Lack of Funds in That Department Nearly Crowded Out Consideration of City Charter Re-draft.

An hour's discussion relative to an alleged approaching deficit in the annual and extra appropriations for the permanent and regular street improvement delayed consideration of the re draft of the city charter by the Board of Aldermen at its special meeting held primarily for this purpose last night, and an adjournment was not had until near midnight.

The discussion was provoked by the reading by Mayor Waddell of a communication from Mr. H. C. McQueen, chairman of the Board of Audit and Finance, in which he stated that the body over which he presided, had refused to allow the rebates paid by property owners along the sections on Princess and Market streets which were recently paved, to be re-applied to the appropriation for streets and wharves, but that the same would be used otherwise in defraying the expenses of the city. Mr. McQueen also informed the Aldermen that only $3,900 was left unexpended of the Streets and Wharves' appropriation. He further stated that all the fiscal appropriations under ordinary conditions would aggregate $180,000 until the close of the year; whereas, the City Clerk and Treasurer estimates that the income from all sources will be only about $175,000, and the money will necessarily not be available.

Alderman MacRae, chairman of the Streets and Wharves Committee, thought it manifestly unjust to let the matter come up at the last moment, and stated that he thought he was quite sure that he had had assurances from the Finance Board that the $4,000 paid by property owners as their pro rata share for the paving of these streets and for work in other sections of the city, for sand, etc., would revert to the fund for permanent street improvements.

Alderman Taylor, a member of the committee, detailed the work in the permanent street improvement and questioned the accuracy of the figures submitted, at the same time giving figures of his own which he said he thought would more nearly approximate the condition. Assuming the correctness of the figures presented by Mr. McQueen, he said that the $4,000 refused the street improvement was a net earning made by the committee and rightfully belonged to it. The Streets and Wharves committee, he said had not overdrafted its appropriations but other committees had done so and it appeared that the Finance Board wanted to put the burden upon his committee.

Mr. MacRae again spoke on the question and said that it would practically amount to a suspension of the permanent street improvement and the throwing out of employment of about one hundred trained men, to say nothing of damage to the quarry by reason of cessation of operation.

Alderman Worth stated that it mattered not where the $4,000 was applied—it was simply a question of bookkeeping—and the real question was how the deficit could be met. The assessment at the beginning of the fiscal year was made with the expectancy of having between $12,000 and $13,000 surplus and this has now been used up in extra appropriations. Aldermen Springer expressed the same opinion and thought the Finance Board perfectly sincere—the means were simply not at hand.

Mr. MacRae injected ginger into the discussion by the intimation that the Finance Board had paid certain notes bearing interest at 5 per cent. for road machinery, which need not have been paid by this administration and which came out of this year's street and wharves appropriation. Inquiry of the Clerk and Treasurer developed the truth of the intimation and members of the committee rather sharply criticised the Board for apparently taking this action without apprising them of the same.

There was next some delay in wording a motion to meet the case and one by Alderman Hanby with second by Alderman Spencer, prevailed, which is in effect that the Board of Audit and Finance be requested to reconsider its action with reference to an application of the $4,000, with assurance by the Aldermen that they will agree in joining the board in the negotiation of a loan to meet any discrepancy that may exist.

Mr. H. C. McQueen, chairman of the Sinking Fund, presented his annual statement and also a comparative statement of the status of the fund since 1895. It shows an accumulation of $76,211.87 since 1895 and a saving of interest annually amounting to $4,934.

The chief of police was instructed to enforce the ordinance relative to the moving back of a fence at the southwest corner of Third and Grace streets, Aldermen Springer and Spencer voting against the measure in the shape presented.

Income tax on $1,000 was ordered refunded to Mr. A. H. Brenner.

Dan Benton was granted license to retail liquor at No. 5 South Second street.

The resignation of Janitor R. A. Benson was read and accepted, but no successor to him was elected.

The redraft of the city charter was next taken up, but consideration of it could not be finished at the session and an adjournment was taken until 7.30 o'clock this evening, when the Board would be glad to have any citizen interested to appear before the meeting and make any suggestions he may see proper regarding the same.

City Attorney Meares, who prepared the redraft, went over each section, explaining only the sections which differ from the present charter, and members of the board were allowed to enter any objection which they saw fit.

Alderman Spencer contended that it should be read and passed upon by sections, but this was overruled. Only 51 of the 122 sections in the charter were considered last night and one of these—that providing for a recorder—was stricken out. The others were approved with a few minor alterations, where there might be possible ambiguity or otherwise the meaning might not have been clearly manifest.

There was about half an hour's discussion of Section 39, which relates to the recorder. Mayor Waddell and Alderman Springer objected strenuously to it on the grounds that the exigencies for some years to come do not seem to require it. The motion to strike out was made by Alderman Springer and seconded by Alderman Spencer, who asked an aye and nay vote on the question. The result of the vote was: Aye—Littleton, Spencer, Hanby, Worth and Springer. Those voting in the affirmative were MacRae, Taylor, West and Woolard. Alderman Parker was absent.

ROBT. E. LEE'S BIRTHDAY

Will Be Fittingly Celebrated Next Saturday—Line of March and Exercises at the Opera House Announced.

All indications point to a great celebration in Wilmington next Saturday, the occasion being the anniversary of General Robert E. Lee's birthday, and it will no doubt excel any held heretofore. Cape Fear Chapter, United Daughters of the Confederacy, is the moving spirit in this memorable celebration and with the co operation of the Veterans, they have arranged a programme of exercises entirely worthy of the occasion. General Lee's birthday is a legal holiday and it is urged that all the merchants close their places of business for several hours in the afternoon at least, in order to allow their employes to take their places in the line of march or to attend the exercises at the Opera House. The parade will be one of the most important features of the afternoon and its success will depend largely upon the closing of places of business, so that the clerks and other employes can get off.

Capt. James I. Metts, chief marshal of the occasion, announces that the procession will form on Market street in front of the Wilmington Light Infantry armory and March promptly at 3 o'clock P. M., with the right resting on Fourth street. The line of march will be down Market to Third street, down Third to Nun; down Nun to Front; up Front to Princess and up Princess to the Opera House to attend the exercises. The following order will be observed:

Cordon of Police.
Capt Metts with his aides on horseback.
Second Regiment Band.
Cape Fear Camp No. 254, U. C. V. and other veterans.
George Davis Camp No. 50, U. S. C. V., and other sons of veterans.
Wilmington Light Infantry.
Wilmington Division Naval Reserves.
Col. Walker Taylor's Brigade.
Howell's Military Academy Cadets.

Captain Metts has not yet announced his aides, but he will likely do so today.

The following programme, which was arranged by Col. W. J. Woodward, will be observed at the Opera House:

Prayer, by Comrade Bishop Watson.
Music.
Oration, by Comrade Eugene S. Martin.
Music.
Reading of General Lee's "Farewell Address," by Comrade Capt. James I. Metts.
Presentation of the Cross of Honor, by Mrs. Meares.
Response, by Comrade Col. John D. Taylor.
"Old North State."
"Dixie."

After the exercises in the Opera House, the Daughters of the Confederacy will serve refreshments in the City Hall to the veterans.

Immigration of Colored People.

Tuesday, January 22nd, at 8 P. M. is the day and St. Luke's A. M. E. Zion church the place for the union meeting of the various colored congregations and of citizens who may choose to attend, both white and colored, for the purpose of considering the advisability of a wholesale exodus of negroes from Wilmington and the South to New York and other cities. The question will be answered negatively in an address by Rev. S. P. W. Drew, president of the Lincoln Employment Bureau, Brooklyn, N. Y., and Rev. Drew also hopes to have short talks about the matter from Rev. Dr. Blackwell, Rev. A. D. McClure and Rev. John H. Hall, pastors of white congregations in the city.

Died Away from Home.

The STAR regrets to announce the death of Mrs. M. F. Melson, which occurred yesterday morning at the residence of Mrs. Georgiana A. Pittman, a relative of the deceased, No. 807 South Fifth street. Mrs. Melson's home was at Conway, S. C., but she had been here on a visit. Her son, Mr. J. P. Melson, Jr., arrived yesterday from Conway and returned home yesterday afternoon with the remains. The funeral will be conducted to-day.

THE COUNTY SCHOOL FUND.

Commissioners Raise Question of Withdrawing Revenue of Liquor Licenses from It—The Apportionment.

The semi annual apportionment of the county school fund by the New Hanover Board of School Directors, which was delayed from last Monday on account of a contention raised by the County Commissioners that a part of the whiskey revenue usually paid into the school fund should be applied to other expenses of the county, was made yesterday, the Commissioners, having temporarily abandoned their claim to the fund until the matter is tested in the courts, which will be done next week when the question will be presented for discussion to Judge Hoke, who will preside over the term of New Hanover Superior Court.

The amount involved is more than $5,000 annually, this being the sum usually derived by the county from liquor licenses and which has gone into the school fund without question until now, for some twenty five years. The Commissioners contend that the sale of liquor in the county increases the Criminal Court expenses and the revenue derived from this source should be applied to a reduction of the same. The State surrenders its revenue from this source to the school fund and the school authorities claim that the county should do likewise as is the custom with practically all other counties in North Carolina.

The following is the apportionment made yesterday, the directors having taken a recess from day to day since Monday:

Wilmington (1st district)	$ 7,957.25
Wilmington (2nd district)	8,115 55
Cape Fear Township	800 09
Federal Point Township	449 82
Masonboro Township	533 00
Harnett Township	2,102.64
Contingent fund	900.00
Total	$20,858.35

The apportionment is, of course, made with respect to the school census in the several townships and districts.

THE KING GROCERY COMPANY.

It Has Been Sold to Mr. J. S. Middleton, Formerly Chief Clerk.

Mr. Joseph S. Middleton has purchased the stock of goods and good will of the King Grocery Company, near Fourth street bridge, and will in the future conduct the business in his own name and along the same lines that have been in vogue at the store during the past years of its successful existence. Mr. John T. Sholar, formerly managing member of the company, retires from the business on account of his health and his not being able to give the strict attention to its details which he would like. He will rest for a week or two and engage in other business.

Mr. Middleton is a young man of splendid business ability and has been head clerk in the store for several years. He will employ about the same clerical force as before and the STAR predicts for the new firm a long and successful career.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY.

Bill Introduced in the Senate for a Railroad from Southport to Chadbourn.

OTHER IMPORTANT MEASURES

To Appropriate $300,000 for the Public Schools—To Prohibit the Sale of Cigarettes—To Amend the Jim Crow Car Law—Trusts.

[Special Star Telegram.]

RALEIGH, N. C., Jan. 16.—In the Senate to day Brown of Columbus introduced a bill to charter a railroad from Chadbourn to Southport, known as the Southport and Northwestern Railroad Company. Understood to be a lumber road for part of the distance.

Memorials from the North Carolina Bar Association for a Code Commission and to increase the judicial districts, were received.

New bills and petitions were more numerous than on any previous day.

A bill passed the Senate to-day repealing chapter 170, Acts of 1889, which prohibited chartering corporations with capital exceeding one million dollars. The bill goes to the House, with every indication of concurrence.

A bill also passed, giving consent for United States authorities to acquire land for a forest preserve in western North Carolina.

Senator Brown of Columbus introduced a bill prohibiting the sale of cigarettes in North Carolina.

Other important bills introduced were:

By Senator Smith, to appropriate $300,000 to the public schools of North Carolina.

By Mr. Ward, to amend chapter 384, Acts of 1899, relating to enforcement of the separate coach (jim crow) law. The bill is designed to prevent the present practice of some small railroads in eastern North Carolina hitching a freight car on several passenger coaches and calling the train "mixed." It is to strike out the word "passenger" and compel a separation of the races on such trains.

By Mr. Ward, bill to "protect trade from trusts, conspiracies and monopolies."

In the House no bills of general interest were passed. Many of a local character were introduced. Among these were the following:

Mr. Patterson, to incorporate the Robeson County Loan and Trust Company.

Mr. Rountree, to amend chapter 180 of the Laws of 1891.

Mr. Rountree, to incorporate the Hilton Railroad & Logging Company.

Mr. Daughteridge, regulating fees for charters of incorporations—fixing fees of charters at $25 for a $5,000 charter and graduated up to $750 for a $1,000,000 charter.

A long list of bills passed their third reading, and more were introduced in both the House and Senate than on any previous day.

Both houses adjourned to 11 o'clock to morrow.

The Senate is much pleased with Lieutenant Governor Turner's methods as presiding officer.

The first official utterance of Governor Aycock after the inauguration was a reply to the message of the Cincinnati Post, wired the Governor: "Will Jeffries and Ruhlin be permitted to fight a number of rounds in North Carolina, if prevented in Cincinnati?" The Governor replied: "Under no conditions will I permit it in North Carolina."

The Morning Star

BY WILLIAM H. BERNARD.

WILMINGTON, N. C.

THURSDAY MORNING, JAN. 17.

WHAT WE EAT.

We saw a statement a couple days ago that a company of Northern men was being organized to save the surplus melon crop of Georgia, which could not be profitably shipped to market and therefore went to waste. As Georgia is a great melon producer and the crop is not exhausted before the melons of other States nearer to the principal markets are ripe enough to ship, the surplus is generally a pretty large one.

How this company proposes to utilize the melons was not stated, but it doubtless knows what it is doing and is not simply venturing on an experiment. We are under the impression that we saw a statement some time ago that a Georgia melon grower was making syrup out of his surplus watermelons and that it was a very nice syrup, for which he found ready sale. Perhaps this is one of the uses that will be made of the melons by this company. For some years the surplus peach and other fruit crops of Georgia went to waste, as much does now, but in some localities they have established canneries and thus realize value from the whole crop.

There are several reasons why the attention of our fruit and vegetable growers should turn to the saving of all their crops, as far as practicable, for this is the only way by which permanent profit may be counted upon, and the business become one with some stability. There are now in the South about twenty millions of people, and most of these are dependent on Northern canneries for nearly all the canned fruits, vegetables, corn, beans, pickles, &c., which they use, and very few of them have any idea of what they are eating when they eat of the contents of these cans or bottles. It never occurs to them that this is a day of food adulteration, and that the unadulterated food or drink is the exception. In North Carolina we use a great quantity of these canned and bottled goods. There isn't probably a grocery store in the State the shelves of which do not show more or less of them. This makes it interesting to know what kind of stuff it is that we buy and eat. The following from the December bulletin of the Agricultural Department may give some idea. Giving the result of tests made, it says:

"In the summary statement below is brought together the results of the examination of various canned vegetables for adulterants. The term adulterant, as here used, means that they contained one or more of the preservatives—salicylic acid, benzoic acid, sulphuric acid, or formaldehyde. Two hundred and twenty seven samples of this class of canned goods were analyzed, 151 samples or 66 5 per cent. (practically two thirds) being artificially preserved by the use of chemical antiseptic. This is anything but an encouraging outlook for the condition of the canned goods market in the State. Formaldehyde was the most largely used antiseptic, salicylic acid ranking second. These, especially the formaldehyde, are powerful antiseptics, and are more or less injurious to the human system, especially to the digestive apparatus of invalids and other persons who are already suffering from disturbance of this kind. Because no immediate bad effect is felt from the use of food containing these preservatives is not proof that they may not be exerting some slow, injurious influence on the body. Besides, there seems to be no good reason why the manufacturers of canned goods should indiscriminately administer physic in food without the knowledge or consent of the user, when the body is in no wise in need of it, especially of the kind given. The vegetables in the cans not containing antiseptics were in as good condition as those having the largest amounts of them. This, with what has already been said in regard to the destruction of germ life by heat, indicates that antiseptics are not necessary to the proper conduct of the canning business, and there seems to be no good reason why they should be used, when the products are clean, sound and fresh, and are properly put up in this condition.

"Subjoined to this summary is a statement of their findings, showing the per cent. of adulteration of canned goods to be as follows:

	Per cent. Adulterated.
Corn	60
Tomatoes	63 03
Beans and peas	78 18
Corn and tomatoes	100 00
Okra and tomatoes	100 00
Okra	50 00
Asparagus	77 77
Succotash	7 14
Pumpkin	100 00
Celery	100 00
Total	66 52

"Tomato catsups and sauces were examined for preservatives and artificial colors. The same methods employed for detecting antiseptics in canned goods were used with these articles.

"All of the catsups, except one, were found to contain chemical preservatives, quite a number of them having two and some of them as many as three different preservatives in the same bottle. In all of the sauces, with one exception, were also found one or more antiseptics.

"There is some excuse for the use of preservatives in this class of goods, inasmuch as they are used in very small quantity at a time, and must be kept for quite a while after opening, but it would appear that the indiscriminate addition of the very large amounts of antiseptics found in a large number of these samples is not justifiable, and we doubt the necessity of their use to this extent.

"Most of the tomato catsups, in addition to being artificially preserved, were also artificially colored with color tar dyes. Some of the numerous dyes from color tar are injurious, and even poisonous, while others appear to have no deleterious effect on the human system. Granting that this artificial coloring is harmless and even ornamental, it may at the same time be hiding dirt and disguising unwholesome products."

According to this over sixty-six and a half per cent. of all the canned and bottled stuff we eat is more or less adulterated, some with poisonous adulterants, poisonous enough to kill quickly if a large dose be taken; and poisonous enough to kill or shatter the health in time when taken in the quantities consumed in eating these preparations. The use of what are called preservatives has become so common these days that they are found in almost everything eatable, in meats, fresh and salted; in fish, in meats cooked and canned, in vegetables, fruits and nearly everything. It has become so common that little attention is paid to it, although analyses show that some of the preservative agents used are highly poisonous.

We can't help buying this stuff and taking the chances when we buy it, if we use these kinds of food, for we don't know what preservatives, if any, are used in the brands we buy, and consequently do not know whether we are taking a dose of quick or slow poison or not when we eat a meal of which these constitute a part.

As a matter of self-protection, aside from the money there may be in such industries, shouldn't this suggest the establishment of canneries in the fruit and trucking sections of the South, where these articles could be put up for our people, where no poisonous preservatives would be used, and upon which our people could rely for their supplies without depending upon Northern canneries, which send out so much adulterated stuff? There certainly should be among the twenty millions of people in the South, canneries enough to make a market for all the fruits, vegetables, &c., which could be put up. There are plenty of openings for these industries right here in North Carolina.

FOR A GIGANTIC TRUST.

There is a Steel Trust, several of them, in this country, but in the estimation of some of the scheming capitalists they do not fill the bill, because they have not as absolute control of the production and the markets as might be obtained by a more far-reaching and gigantic Trust, one with capital enough to crush any attempt at competition. That is what J. P. Morgan, the great promoter and schemer, seems to be aiming at, judging from the following Philadelphia dispatch to the New York Tribune:

"It is learned from credible sources that negotiations are under way looking to the purchase or control of the Carnegie Company by J. Pierpont Morgan and his associates. This is said to be the first step in an extensive plan of virtual consolidation in the industrial field along the lines recently carried out in the railroad world in bringing a number of roads under the so called 'community of interest' control.

"The present plan, according to the report, contemplates the bringing of all the great steel companies under the control of a small group of capitalists. While an actual merging of the properties may not be brought about, the scheme provides that the control of all the big properties shall be vested in the same hands, and that the companies shall be economically and carefully operated and rate cutting and ruinous competition done away with.

"No step in this direction could be made without first considering the Carnegie Company, by far the largest, most powerful and most resourceful of all the steel companies. This corporation is capitalized at $160,000,000, and there is outside of this an equal amount of bonds. Andrew Carnegie owns an absolute majority of the stock and bonds. He has personally more than 53 per cent. of this enormous amount, and the remaining interest is owned by his 32 partners and a few other holders.

"Recently, according to sources generally regarded as well informed, negotiations have been going on between J. Pierpont Morgan, representing a pool of capitalists, and Mr. Carnegie, looking to the purchase of Mr. Carnegie's entire stock holdings. If this transaction be effected Mr. Morgan, through his interests in other big steel properties and the newly acquired control of the Carnegie Company, will be in a position practically to dictate to every other steel company in the country, and, with this done, it is believed that the few independent organizations would be easily persuaded to come into the combination."

There may be nothing in this, and yet there may be. If there be how completely such a gigantic combination would have in its power the steel production of the country, and the industries which use steel; not only these, but the mines which produce iron, and this means that one combination would have absolute control over the greatest manufacturing business in the country, and one that affects more industries and people than any other one manufacturing industry in the country.

ANOTHER RED HOT OBJECT LESSON.

Yesterday we presented an object lesson on the color line from Kansas City, Kansas, and following that in quick succession comes another, that has in it all the elements of the horrible, from Leavenworth, in the same State. Not content with killing by rope or shot the brutal assaulter of one white woman and the suspected murderer of another, the infuriated men of that town, following the example of the mob in Colorado sometime ago, burned the criminal at the stake. Eight thousand or more people witnessed the horrid spectacle, and there does not seem to have been any attempt made to rescue the assaulter from the girl's avengers.

This was not in the South; it was not in a rural section, but in the heart of one of the principal cities of that State, which in ante-bellum days was a refuge for fugitive slaves and where white men defied the law and fought to prevent their return to their masters.

The crime for which this negro suffered such an awful retribution was the outlawed crime, for the punishment of which outside of the formalities of the law, the men of the South have been so much condemned and so mercilessly scored by writers who had never been put in the same place, or subjected to the same ordeals the Southern people were. When the test comes home to them, how soon they show how little there is in moralizing, how easily it is forgotten, and how quick they are to visit with speedy and terrible vengeance crimes upon their wives and sisters. The average man is pretty much the same on either side of a geographical line.

A cute firm in Toronto, Canada, did a paying business by advertising a beautifully bound book of 400 pages, full of good things and one that every sport should have, one of the most wonderful books ever written in French and translated into English. Its reading was prohibited in some countries. The French and the prohibiting features were the catchy points with the sports, and the book was going like warm cakes, until some detective suspecting unlawful use of the mails wrote for a copy, enclosed the price and got a nice 15-cent Bible.

"The North Carolina Year Book" for 1901, published by the Raleigh News and Observer, is a valuable production, in the amount of useful information it gives pertaining to our State. The want of a work of that kind has been long felt, and we congratulate the compilers on their success in meeting this want, by putting information within the reach of all which could not otherwise be obtained without considerable trouble. It does not claim to be perfect, but every one will recognize its value on sight.

—— Of the four leading articles of American export—cotton, breadstuffs, provisions and mineral oils—there were sent out $832,164,250 during the year 1900. As compared with similar exports in 1898, breadstuffs, fell off $16,713,435, petroleum increased $8,294,033, provisions increased $4,437,389 and cotton increased no less than $123,011,317. The net gain of about $119,000,000 is to be credited almost entirely to cotton, which during last year, at least, seemed to have resumed its one time position as "king" and key of our traffic relations with the Old World.—Philadelphia Record, Dem.

In addition to the regular dividend of 8 per cent, paid stockholders, a dividend of 50 per cent. in stock from accrued dividends will be issued to stockholders. It was also decided to build a new $50,000 mill on the company's property, near the present mill. The new mill will be equipped with 6,000 spindles, and for the purpose of building and equipping the new mill a limited amount of stock—not less than $30,000 nor more than $50,000—will be sold. In the afternoon Mr. Erwin was accosted in the upper rear corridor of the court house by Miller, who engaged him in a discussion. Sheriff Lee happened along just about then, and as he was going up the back stairs, and within about five feet of the two men, Miller said something to the effect, "You have lost confidence in me, and now I haven't a friend left," and as he made the remark he struck a match and attempted to light a dynamite stick which he held in one hand. Quick as a flash Sheriff Lee struck at the match with one hand and at the stick with the other. He put out the match and broke the dynamite stick in two. Miller still retained one half of it, and quickly put the end in his mouth, declaring he would explode it by biting the cap. The sheriff made another swipe at the stick and knocked it from his mouth. This ended the matter.

The Various Quarters and the People Who Inhabit Them.

Paris is not the noisiest of continental cities, but it is not especially quiet. The whole place, except in the aristocratic quarters, seems to be wide awake and much alive in early morning. Street cries are especially noticeable as the hawkers ply their busy trade. But though the traffic in Paris is noisier, it is not dense. Yet it appears more bewildering to the foot passengers in Paris because of the want of order. The Parisian police, or guardiens de la paix, are not nearly so much in evidence as our policemen. The coachmen in Paris seem to drive where they please, and if a policeman held up a restraining hand it is questionable whether the driver of a public vehicle would pay much attention to his warning. They sometimes rather timidly hold up batons. It is therefore necessary to be careful in the more crowded places in crossing the streets. The little victorias skim past in such happy go lucky fashion that the wonder is there are not more frequent accidents.

In Paris the modern fashionable quarter for dwelling houses lies in the Chaussee d'Antin and west of the Madeleine, near the Elysee and the Champs Elysees, the district of the Faubourg St. Honore. The old aristocracy chiefly inhabits the Faubourg St. Germain, south of the Seine, opposite the Tuileries and its gardens. The famous Quartier Latin, the resort of students and art workers, lies east of the Faubourg St. Germain. This is the learned corner of Paris. Here are the universities, most of the colleges, schools and scientific institutions, and for centuries this has been regarded as the students' quarter. Behind the Church of the Sarbonne is the Lycee Louis le Grand, founded in 1560 by Francis I and rebuilt by the Jesuits in 1680. Close by, on the Place du Pantheon, is the Lycee Henri Quatre, with its ancient though restored tower. This formed part of the old abbey of St. Genevieve. The ancient refectory is now used as the chapel of the Lycee.

North of the river and to the east of the Place de la Bastille, the Faubourg St. Antoine is the artisan quarter, where the chief part of the working people dwell. Here are found cabinet makers, wood carvers, carpenters, all the useful trades, and in revolutionary times the outbreak has usually proceeded from or been fomented in this quarter. There is a most interesting museum, the Musee Carnavalet, a beautiful building, begun early in the sixteenth century and finished 100 years later. It stands in the Rue Sevigne, a street leading on the left from the Rue de Rivoli, just where that street changes its name to Rue St. Antoine. The Maison Carnavalet was the town residence of Mme. de Sevigne from 1677 to 1696. It is now a municipal museum and contains objects relating to the history of Paris from early down to recent times. Various objects here have connection with or illustrate the revolutions of 1780, 1830 and 1848. Some of the sculpture on the building is the work of the famous Jean Goujon, 1520-1572.—Chicago News.

Briefly Announced.

There is no personage quite so imposing as a well developed specimen of the British butler. The Wellesley Magazine relates an anecdote of one butler whose taste for the impressive was too much for the family whose service he had entered.

He was a newcomer, and almost his first duty was to announce the arrivals at his employer's first "at home" of the season. The earliest guests to appear were Mr. and Mrs. Penny and their daughter, old and familiar friends of the family. The new butler announced them in measured tones and with majestic mien:

"Mr. Edwin Algernon Pembroke Penny, Mrs. Edwin Algernon Pembroke Penny and Miss Maud Victoria Penny."

Other arrivals were announced at equal length and with equal solemnity. Before the next "at home" the master of the house suggested that so much repetition and elaboration was unnecessary; that he would prefer to have his guests announced more briefly. The magnificent being bowed grave assent and said nothing. But his feelings had been wounded, and he was, unlike most of his kind, as clever as he was majestic.

As before, the first to arrive were Mr. and Mrs. Penny and Miss Penny. When they had ascended the stairs, they paused an instant at the drawing room door; the next the butler flung it abruptly open, and they heard themselves briskly announced to their dismayed hosts in the comprehensive formula:

"Threepence!"

Blacksmith Aprons.

Every Easter Monday morning the blacksmiths all over the land, following an immemorial custom, put on new leather aprons. They do this twice a year, at the Easter and Christmas holidays. Dealers expect it of them and lay in a great stock in advance. The most recherche blacksmith's apron is now made of sheepskin. It has a diamond shaped bib to cover the breast, but fashion dictates that should not be worn up, but should fall from the waist down over the stomach carelessly.

The apron fastens behind with two brass buttons and comes in three colors, white, lemon and tan. The white one, which is affected by the younger and more modish sort of blacksmith, is reenforced and padded at the knees for horseshoeing and such like work. This is an effeminacy disdained by the austere and hardy blacksmith of the old school. Though all aprons are slit up the middle to the thigh, they still continue to be sold unslit. It is because the manufacturers are not progressive. An apron costs $1 and lasts about six months.—Philadelphia Record.

"A pleasant little surprise for you," responded the lady. "You know, you said this morning that we ought to study astronomy, and so I went to a bookshop and bought everything I could find on the subject."

It was some minutes before he spoke.

"My dear," he then said slowly, his voice husky with emotion, "I never said we must study astronomy. I said that we must study economy."—Pearson's Weekly.

COTTON MARKETS.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star

NEW YORK, Jan. 16.—The tables were turned completely in to-day's market for cotton futures, the bulls being in control from opening to closing. The direct cause for the upward movement was an unexpected bulge in the English market, which in turn was influenced, according to private cables, by smaller offerings of spot cotton and talk of a bullish circular by Neill in the near future. On the advance many minor bull factors came to light and helped the market. The opening was steady with prices up three to five points. The shorts for a brief time were inclined to believe the reaction only a temporary matter, but continued advances abroad

NATURE'S MIRACLE.

He who loves not a noble tree
No fellowship may claim from me.

Deep in the earth its great roots spread,
But heaven's own blue surrounds its head.

It holds the joy of summer morn,
The strength of winter's wildest born.

God's birds find shelter in its arms,
Secure from everything that harms.

It bows when south winds wander past,
But breasts unharmed the fiercest blast.

'Tis nature's miracle to me,
Her fairest work—a noble tree.

IN THE LITTLE HOSPITAL.

A Touching Sketch of Two Patients Who Sailed Together.

BY P. Y. BLACK.

In the little country hospital the young nurses were very good and attentive to everybody, not having been in the business long enough to have grown callous. They were nice girls, mostly in their first year's course, and their lips would twitch and their faces whiten very often in the operating room or when they held a patient's hand while he died in the night. But they were brave and went about the pretty hospital singing softly in the cool corridors, carrying little white clothed trays to the sickrooms and being the best of medicines themselves by reason of their neatness, their bright eyes and their kind voices.

Now, one beautiful bright spring afternoon at the railroad junction in the town two trains filled with pleasure seekers smashed together, and the doctors and the matron and the nurses were plunged into a world of work, for ambulance after ambulance came driving up from the scene of the accident and left to the care of the girls many people sorely hurt. And among them was a very little boy about 6 years old whom nobody knew anything about because his father and mother were both killed in the collision, and there was nothing on them to show who or what they were except that they were very poor. It is comprehensible that a very great deal of attention was paid to this little fellow, and he would have been placed in the women's ward, as the hospital was too small for a children's ward, but the women's ward was full. So the boy, quite insensible, was laid on a cot in the men's ward, and next to him was laid a big brown bearded man, also insensible, from whose clothes had been gathered quite a sum of money and whose few papers went to show he had been a sailor. He was a very rough looking man indeed.

The man came to his senses first, and it was night. The nurse on watch was quite frightened at the man. He was in pain, and great allowance must be made for that, but never in all her life had the little nurse to listen to such words as came from the big brown bearded man's lips. He wanted to get up and go right away, but he found he could not move his great massive legs. So he began to abuse his fate and the railway and the hospital and the nurse and mankind in general. He was a very bitter mouthed man indeed. The little nurse by the light of the night lamp did her best to soothe him because he roused other patients, and there was a terrible groaning and wailing in the small ward. And all at once the little boy came to his senses, too, just for a minute, and his face was turned to the sailor's face, and his eyes fell upon the sailor's eyes. He was not quite sensible yet, for it seemed he mistook the sailor for his dead papa, and he said very prettily:

"Good morning, dad. How are you this morning?"

The sailor, looking into the little fellow's eyes, was abashed and stopped his swearing and was silent for a moment and then muttered clumsily:

"I'm all right."

"That's nice," said the boy and became unconscious again.

The sailor did not abuse anything any more just then, but lay groaning, and every now and again when the little nurse slipped by in the shadows he called to her softly, and the first time he said:

"Pretty little chap."

The nurse nodded and smiled, and the sailor smiled back, and until morning came at last he only groaned and watched the child and did not curse at all, but every time the nurse came to wipe his brow or give him a drink he whispered to her to look at the boy.

"Pretty boy! He thought I was his dad," he said and would have laughed only his pain made him groan instead. Again he caught the nurse's hand.

"Said it was nice, he did. Cute, ain't he?" And then his face twisted in pain.

But neither could the sailor rise from his back, and neither could the sailor hope to sail the sea again, for he was in the same case with the child, and both were slowly dying. At first sometimes the big brown man would forget himself in his pain, and the nurses would shut their ears, terrified, and the matron would threaten to move him to a room by himself, and that frightened him to silence, for ever since the accident he had a great love for the child. The child would look at his huge friend in surprise when he fell into one of his rages and say:

"Oh, John, that's not nice!"

And John would bite his lips at once and be patient. Then the child would say:

"How do you feel, John?"

And the sailor would answer:

"First rate, Joe."

"That's nice," little Joe would say. And they would lie quiet and look out of the window at the river and beyond where the big hills purpled to the skies and were always looking up.

So it was in the mornings, when Joe seemed always first awake and ready to have his hands and face washed by the nurse. He could not turn about to see the other patients, but he learned all their names, and as soon as he heard them moving he always asked very politely:

"And how do you feel, Mr. Smith?"

And Mr. Smith would always answer because it pleased the child:

"First rate, Joe."

"That's nice," said Joe. And so he would ask each in turn, and to each answer, always the same, he would reply cheerfully, "That's nice."

And when they asked him how it went with him he always said, though sometimes with an effort, "I'm pretty well, thank you." Then everybody would say with real pleasure, "That's nice, Joe."

So the summer went on, and very few patients came to the hospital, and John and Joe were all alone, save for the nurses who grew to dread the time that was soon to part the friends.

At last they told the sailor that there was no hope at all for him. A clergyman came to prepare him. He took the news very calmly, but instantly whispered:

"And the little fellow, Joe?"

"Don't tell him," said the minister. "He is so innocent he needs no preparation. But you?"

For days the poor sailor was in much trouble, and one night he whispered to his little companion:

"Joe, say you was rich as Vanderbilt and he was going a long sail, would you leave me behind?"

"No, John," said the child very earnestly: "I would want you to come too."

"Would you feel sorry, Joe, to sail away and leave me on the wharf, or—or if you was safe in a fine big ship, see me busted to pieces on the rocks?"

"John," said the child, "I would jump out and pull you to my ship, I would."

"Good old Joe," said the sailor, and said nothing more until prayer time, when he squeezed Joe's hand and whispered:

"Pray hard, Joe. Pray hard for me to come along. Pray for two, Joe."

And little Joe prayed for two.

The two used to watch for the searchlight of the big night boat which ran between two great cities on the river. When the steamer turned a point, its light flashed for an instant full on the front of the little hospital. Joe and John, hand in hand, very, very weak now, would lie and watch for it. Joe had made a story that it knew they were there and smiled in on purpose to say "Good night." Always he piped "good night" in return and John also. Then Joe, squeezing the once powerful hairy hand, would feebly ask:

"How do you feel, John, tonight?"

"First rate, Joe," poor John would answer, with a smothered groan.

"That's nice."

And they would lie very still or gradually go to sleep.

And so one night the steamboat came up the river and turned the point and cast its light upon the little hospital.

"Good night," said the sailor in a very low, husky whisper, while Joe's little hand rested on his. But the boy's eyes were wide with a strange light.

"It didn't say 'good night,' John," he whispered and tried to squeeze his friend's hand. "It said 'goodby.'"

The sailor tried to rise in bed, but was unable even to call out. He saw the river, but he could not see the other side. It was dark. He was afraid. His fingers closed round the child's feebly.

"How—do—you—feel tonight, dear John?" said little Joe's voice very softly and tenderly.

There was a moment's pause. The sailor's voice rang out with a glad cry:

"First rate, Joe."

"That's nice," said the child.

And the little nurses, running in, found the friends had gone together.—Los Angeles Times.

Chinese Dressmakers.

The sewing as well as dressmaking is all done by men tailors in China. There are many amusing stories told of them as copyists of the American's way of making up garments. A friend had need of a dozen undergarments. As she came over on shipboard a button was lost, and an exceedingly clumsy and ugly one replaced the lost one, which was of pearl. On reaching Shanghai she desired a tailor to copy from this garment, which was placed in his hands as a model. He brought back the garments, exquisite creations in lace and tucked muslin and each of the dozen adorned with a button exactly like the one on the sample garment.

Upon having his attention called to the ugly button his reply was, "Likee missy," and he was greatly disappointed that his efforts to please were not appreciated. He had spent many hours in search for "likee" buttons and no doubt was greatly disgusted with the unreasonableness of the foreign lady.—Alice Hamilton Rich in Woman's Home Companion.

Appropriate.

People who have the mistaken idea that poets prefer to be addressed in what is commonly called "high flown language" sometimes say strange things.

One such misguided individual spoke to Colonel John Hay in a hotel parlor soon after the great fire in Chicago.

"Well, Colonel Hay," she said, advancing with outstretched hand and her sweetest smile, "I suppose we shall soon have the pleasure of seeing the great fire embalmed in your liquid verse, shall we not?"

More Fit.

"Jaysmith is a sharp man," said Bloobumper.

"I should use the comparative degree instead of the positive," said Spatts.

"How's that?"

"I should call him a sharper."—Detroit Free Press.

WILMINGTON, N. C.

THURSDAY MORNING, JAN. 17.

TO PROTECT AMERICAN INTERESTS IN VENEZUELA.

U. S. Warship Scorpion Ordered from La Guira to Guanoco—Will Use Her Guns If Necessary.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16—At the request of the State Department the Navy Department has instructed the commander of the Scorpion to proceed at once from La Guira to Guanoco, Venezuela, to protect American interests, upon reports that the revolutionary movement there is increasing and the attempt is making to take possession of the arms of the New York & Bermundez Company.

The news came to the State Department from a private but perfectly reliable source, and was made the basis of immediate representations to the Navy Department. Secretary Long responded very promptly Captain Coates, acting as chief of the Navigation Bureau, conferred with Acting Secretary of State Hill respecting the movements of the naval vessels and the character of the instructions to be sent to Lieutenant Commander Sargent of the Scorpion, which happens to be the only vessel available for immediate service, and adjacent to the scene of trouble.

Commander Sargent has been instructed to avoid bloodshed and the destruction of property, if possible. Still, taken in connection with what has gone before, there is little doubt that if the disturbing forces in Venezuela, whether governmental or revolutionary, are seeking to take action toward disposing of the incumbents in the asphalt concession, in defiance of the tacit agreement that there should first be a thorough judicial inquiry, the United States warship will prevent that action—peaceably if possible, forcibly if necessary. Guanoco is not to be found on the ordinary charts, but it is said to be the nearest point to the asphalt concessions accessible to the Scorpion, lying up the Orinoco river, about two days run from La Guira, so that the warship should be at the seat of the trouble before the end of the present week.

The State Department also is in receipt of private but trustworthy advices that the Orinoco Shipping and Trading Company, two of whose vessels were seized yesterday by the Venezeulan government, is an English corporation. The vessels are under British registry but fly the Venezeulan flag. The State Department is unable to intervene directly to compel restitution, but as American capital is invested in the company, it has directed Minister Loomis to use his good offices as far as possible to protect these American interests.

HAY-PAUNCEFOTE TREATY.

Great Britain Will Not Accept the Senate's Amendments.

By Cable to the Morning Star.

LONDON, January 16—There is no shadow of doubt that if the opinion of the Foreign Office is followed Great Britain will either regretfully express her inability to comply with the amendments to the Hay Pauncefote treaty or fail to take any action whatever, in which case the treaty will lapse of itself. Several of Lord Lansdowne's advisors favor the latter course. Were not the question regarded from the broad standpoint of Great Britain's general policy towards the United States, it would be safe to say the Senate's amendments would meet with a prompt refusal, and if that does occur it will be done with a full appreciation on the part of Great Britain of any and all consequences.

UPPER CLASSMEN CALLED COWARDS

Senators Denounce Hazing Practices at West Point in Scathing Terms.

ARMY REORGANIZATION BILL.

A Final Vote Will Be Taken Upon the Measure in the Senate on Friday. River and Harbor Bill Passed by the House.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—A final vote upon the pending Army Reorganization bill will be taken by the Senate at 4 o'clock Friday under the terms of an agreement reached late to day. The feature of the debate was the denunciation of the practice of hazing at the West Point Military Academy. Senator Allen of Nebraska, Senator Money of Mississippi and Senator McCumber of North Dakota declared it to be an evidence of brutality and cowardice.

Senator Teller moved to strike out that paragraph of the bill which empowered the President to place on the retired list any officer who has been suspended from duty by sentence of court martial or by executive order in mitigation of such sentence. The amendment was agreed to.

Senator Allen declared his opposition to the pending measure in any form. He declared it was wrong in its purposes and radically wrong constitutionally. He declared that the Filipinos owe allegiance only to their own island government, however weak and puny it may be. They are not rebels, though they may be insurgents.

"The flippancy with which the term traitor and treason are being used these days," said Senator Allen, "is getting to be a stench in the nostrils of some of us."

He declared that brutality had been developed at West Point which ought not to be expected to exist among barbarians. "The prize fighter," said Senator Allen, "is a gentleman compared with some of those young ruffians at West Point. The first thing a fourth class man meets at West Point is brutal assault and humiliating indignity. These things take place within the knowledge of the officers of the institution. He who will use his superior strength in humiliating or brutally treating a weaker person is a coward.

"I have information which leads me to believe that hazing at West Point is resorted to to force out of the institution cadets appointed from civil life, in order to make room for the sons of army officers, and if unsuccessful they prescribe a course of examination, which they could not pass themselves, and thus force the prescribed cadet from the school.

Senator Money, Mississippi, declared that if he was a cadet at West Point, "and was hazed in so cowardly and brutal a manner, I would kill the hazers, if the opportunity did not come for a hundred years afterward."

Senator Allen continued: "Those cadets carry hazing almost to the extent of taking life and in one instance recently they have taken life, and the Senator from Mississippi (Money) says they have taken life in several instances."

Senator Teller declared that the conditions in the Philippine islands had not improved since the United States had succeeded Spain there. Senator Teller said: "I want to hold the islands because I think that would be better for the Filipinos and that the islands will be valuable to us. If, however, we can hold them only by force, there is no consideration, financial or any other, that will justify us in retaining them."

Senator Butler, North Carolina, in opposing the pending measure, said he was ready now to vote for any army that the government might need for the present emergency, or any emergency that might arise, but he was unalterably opposed to the creation of a large standing army. He urged that not a single reason had been furnished for the creation of an army of 100,000 soldiers.

"Every soldier in the army under this bill will be a volunteer," interjected Senator Hawley. "We will be here next year and can take care of the situation then as may be deemed desirable."

Senator Butler responded that that was a mere sham and dodge, and not a reason for the proposed action.

Senator Hawley asked for unanimous consent that a final vote be taken on the bill and amendments at 3 o'clock to morrow. Senator Daniel, Virginia, objected.

Senator Hawley then requested a final vote at 4 o'clock on Friday. To this no objection was entered and the agreement was announced formally.

After almost an hour's executive session, the Senate at 5.50 P. M. adjourned.

House of Representatives.

The River and Harbor Appropriation bill was passed to-day by the House. The bill passed practically as it came from the committee. It carries slightly less than $60,000,000, of which $28,000,000 is in direct appropriations. The friends of the Missouri river improvement, although they were unsuccessful in securing what they desired, persuaded Chairman Burton to offer an amendment to permit owners of property abutting on the Missouri to build dykes and wing dams for its protection, where such structures do not interfere with the navigation of the stream. The section empowering the President to negotiate with Great Britain for the maintenance of suitable levels on the Great Lakes was broadened so as to provide for a joint commission to conduct the negotiations.

The House laid on the table the Dearmond resolution calling upon the War Department for all information relative to the alleged action of Gen. Chaffee in protesting against the looting in China, with the recommendation that it lie on the table. Mr. Dearmond said he was satisfied with the Secretary of State's explanation of the difficulty in answering.

Chairman Burton offered a substitute for Section 4, which was adopted. It authorized the President to invite Great Britain to join in an annual commission, composed of three members from each country, to report from time to time upon the conditions and uses of the waters adjacent to the boundary line between the United States and Canada, including all the lakes and rivers whose waters flow by the St. Lawrence to the Atlantic ocean; also, upon the maintenance and regulation of suitable levels and of the effect upon the shores of the waters and upon the interests of navigation by reason of their diversion from their natural flow and to make necessary recommendations. It also authorized the President to appoint the United States members of the commission and authorize them to employ experts, etc.

Several minor amendments were offered and defeated.

Upon the completion of the bill Mr. Cushman, Washington, attempted to prevent the committee from rising and reporting the bill to the House, but he was overwhelmed, the vote standing 185 to 2. The committee accordingly rose. Mr. Cushman moved to recommit the bill. He demanded the ayes and noes, but was supported by only four members. This motion being lost, Mr. Sulzer, New York, demanded the ayes and noes on the passage of the bill. Only thirteen members backed the demand and the bill was passed without division.

The Senate concurrent resolution to pay the expenses of the inauguration of the President and Vice President, amended so as to provide for a joint committee of the House and Senate in charge, was adopted.

Another concurrent resolution to provide for this joint committee the details of the inauguration ceremonies also was adopted.

Then, at 5.15 P. M., the House adjourned

A MYSTERIOUS MURDER.

Body of a Man With Throat Cut Found in a Trunk on a Busy Thoroughfare in New York City.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

NEW YORK, Jan. 16.—The body of a man, with throat cut from ear to ear and showing other marks of violence, was found in a trunk on a pile of skids at the bulkhead of Pier 11, East river, just before noon to-day. It was identified two hours later by a woman as the body of Michael Weissberger, or Weissberg, an Eastside Hebrew, who was employed by a jewelry firm to sell jewelry on the installment plan. Police Captain Titus declared that the motive for the crime was robbery, and intimated that at least two men were concerned in the murder. Attention was called to the trunk by some longshoremen working on the pier. It lay within fifty feet of the rear end of the Old Slip station house and in a busy thoroughfare. There was a spatter of blood on the trunk. Patrolman Reilly opened the trunk. Lying on its left side, and with knees doubled up, was the body of a man, the upper part completely drenched in blood. An examination of the body showed, in addition to the terrible gash in the head, a number of bruises on the abdomen, forehead, chin, nose and lips, and three of the victim's front teeth had been knocked out. The body had been partially undressed.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

CHARLOTTE, N. C., Jan. 16.—Sixty North Carolina mill owners, said to represent over one hundred cotton mills, met in Greensboro, N. C., today to consider the questions of reduction of hours and child labor. An agreement and petition was signed by forty of those in attendance and it was decided to circulate it among all the mill owners of North Carolina for their approval. It provides that, taking effect March 1, 1901, a week's work shall not exceed sixty six hours; no child less than twelve years old shall work in a cotton mill during a school term; provided that this is not to apply to children of widows or physically disabled parents; that ten years shall be lowest limit at which children may be worked; all will promote the education of the working people, on the basis of these agreements of cotton mill owners they petition the Legislature not to pass any labor laws at this session.

MILL GIRL MURDER AT PATERSON, N. J.

Counsel for the Defence in the Trial Practically Closed Its Case.

ACCUSED TELL THEIR STORY.

The Three Men Charged With the Murder of Jennie Boschieter Give Their Version of Events on the Night the Girl Met Her Death.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

PATERSON, N. J., Jan. 16.—Counsel for the defence in the Jennie Boschieter murder trial to day practically closed their case. William A. Death, Walter L. McAllister and Andrew Campbell, the three men on trial for the murder, told their versions of the events of the night Jennie Boschieter met her death while in their company. Their testimony varied but little as to details. The plea set up by counsel for the three defendants was a general and specific denial of all the accusations made against the men. He opened with an attack on the moral character of the dead girl and claimed that the prisoners were in no way responsible for the death of Jennie Boschieter. He denied that she had been drugged and he denied that she had been ill-treated and assaulted.

McAllister, Death and Campbell were each on the stand. Their testimony was on the line that they were acting on a generous impulse when they took the girl out of the saloon to the hack. They claimed that she was "jolly drunk" for a time in the back room of Saal's saloon; said she was joking and laughing after the first drink; that she became "dopey" after taking the absinthe and then became dead drunk. They thought a drive in the fresh air would do her good and had taken her across the river out into the country. The assault was denied. They had lifted the girl out of the hack because she was sick and they had conducted themselves like humanitarians in their efforts to bring her back to her senses. They had taken her to the brook to obtain water. They would have taken her home after she was dead, but when they reached the neighborhood they saw persons about. They were frightened at "the dead girl," and did not want to get mixed up in the scandal.

They maintained that they had no evil intentions against the girl. The meeting in the saloon was unintentional so far as McAllister was concerned, and he had drawn his friend Kerr into the case unwittingly. Campbell became mixed up in it because Death did not want to be seen on the street with the girl lest some one should tell his wife. The hack, it would appear from the statements made by the prisoners, was not intended for the party at first, but for McAllister, Kerr, and two young women whose names McAllister refused to divulge on the ground that their names had not been mentioned before and he did not want to cause them annoyance. The stop intended at Lee's was not connected with the girl they had with them, but because, although she had had enough to drink, the men had further capacity. The story as told by each appeared plausible, explanatory and reasonable, but conflicted with the testimony of the hackman and the alleged confessions of Death and Campbell as introduced by the State and admitted as evidence. The State, which was beaten yesterday in the effort to introduce the confession said to have been made by Campbell, succeeded in getting it all in, even more detailed in manner than would have been possible yesterday.

Dr. Charles J. Loffer, of New York city, who was called by the defence, said he had seen person "knocked out" by absinthe.

Prosecutor Emley asked him the hypothetical question:

"If a person had died after having taken absinthe, and chloral was found in the stomach, what would you say she died off?"

"From chloral poison," was the reply.

To-morrow the summing up will occur and probably the case will be left with the jury about sundown, although it may be that Judge Dixon will defer the charge to the jury until Friday.

PASSENGER ASSOCIATION.

Reduced Rates Agreed Upon for the Inauguration at Washington and Other Events.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

NEW ORLEANS, LA., Jan. 16.—The second day's session of the Trans-Continental Passenger Association disposed of important matters to day. It was decided that for the Pan-American Exposition at Buffalo the regular Summer tourist rates would be put on. For the National Educational Association's meeting at Detroit, July 8th to 12th, it was decided to put on a thirty day one fare rate. Such was also decided upon for the tri-annual conclave of the Knights Templar, to be held at Louisville, August 27th to 30th. The matter of the Knights of Pythias Convention at San Francisco in 1902 was referred to a committee of the lines terminal at San Francisco. For the Presidential inauguration, March 4th, at Washington, a thirty-day one-fare rate was agreed to. The same rate was made for the meeting of the Grand Lodge of Elks at Milwaukie in July, and similar rates were made for the Christian Endeavor Convention at Cincinnati in June.

BOERS CONCENTRATING.

Gen. DeWet Crossed the Vaal River and Joined Forces With the Transvaal Commandoes.

By Cable to the Morning Star.

LONDON, January 17.—The important report received from Johannesburg that General DeWet has crossed the Vaal and joined forces with the Transvaal commandoes, if true, probably means the concentration of seven thousand Boers, with several guns, for another big attack.

There is a rumor current in Cape Town that several Boer leaders are urging an attack upon the mines. It has long been understood that General DeWet has been anxious to join the invaders in Cape Colony and this rumor may be spread to cover an attempt to break southward.

The response to the government's call for volunteers is said to be very brisk in both London and the provinces. Defensive measures in South Africa proceed apace.

Seven thousand men have joined the city guard in Cape Town and three thousand others have volunteered in the suburbs.

LYNCHING IN FLORIDA.

Negro Who Confessed to Wrecking a Fast Train on the Plant System Hanged by a Mob Near Dunnelon.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

OCALA, FLA., January 16.—Norman McKinney, colored, has been lynched for wrecking the Plant System's fast train near Dunnelon Sunday night, and the victim implicated two others, who may share the same fate if they are caught. In less than two hours after the wreck, in which the engineer was killed, the county officers were on the trail of the wreckers and a dozen arrests were made before Monday at noon. All of the arrests were on suspicion and several of the persons arrested were liberated, proving conclusively that they were not the guilty party. Monday afternoon McKinney was taking a deep interest in the affair and was promptly arrested by the authorities, also on suspicion. That night he was questioned so closely and told so many conflicting stories that it was decided to carry him to Inverness to the county jail. On the way a mob of fifty or more overpowered the officers and took the prisoner. He was taken back to the scene of the wreck, and he there confessed to the crime, implicating and describing the two others, who have escaped, but are now being hunted for. After the confession, in which he stated that the train was wrecked for the purpose of robbery, he was hung to a tree. The coroner's jury returned the verdict that he met death at the hands of unknown parties.

STEAMER VIGILANCIA.

Passengers Taken Off the Wreck and Landed at Havana.

By Cable to the Morning Star.

HAVANA, January 16.—The passengers of the Ward Line steamer Vigilancia, which went ashore Monday morning on the reefs off Los Colorados, about one hundred miles west of this city, in a fog, have arrived here on the steamer Orizaba, which went to her assistance with two tugs and lighters. The wind has veered southward and there is no sea running. It is thought the vessel will be saved if the weather holds.

The Vigilancia now lies in eleven feet of water. She has a bad list to starboard and her boilers are displaced. They cannot be used. But she is not making water. The cattle and freight on board of her have been unloaded and sent to Havana.
